The clue of the picture from the past.

Panel 1: That's the phone. Now, who can it be?

Don't worry, Mrs Evans. It'll be for me!

Panel 2: It was the Voice again.

Have a word with Ivor Griffiths the school-teacher.

Panel 3: Mack arranged to meet Jones later, then he went to see Ivor Griffiths.

I just got your phone message that you were coming, Mr Mack.

That wasn't me, but the point is can Jones the Milk play football?

Panel 4: That team won the Secondary shield for all Wales, and Trevor Jones on the left wing did most of it. Drop a ball on a sixpence, he could.

You've told me what I want to know, Mr Griffiths.

Panel 5: Ten minutes later—

This chap on the phone was just saying you'd be back for me. Well I don't know, see . . .

OFFICE

The River Endrock runs near Blackton, you know, Trevor. Best trout in the north but crafty. Takes a REAL fisherman to catch them!

Panel 6: Next day in Blackton.

When do I see the river, Mr Mack?

I'll take you along after you've played against Wolverley.

Panel 7: Ian Mack's new signing caused the club secretary, Bert Baxter, and trainer Joe Beaton, some concern.

You mean the boss is playing a new player against Wolverley, the league leaders?

TRAINER

Bert, THIS lad hasn't kicked a ball in three years! Before that he played in his school side!

Panel 8: There's the phone! I bet it's the mystery voice!

TRAINER

Panel 9: Don't spread stories about Jones. If the team heard what you've just been saying, they won't pass to Jones.

Panel 10: Well, the voice gave sound advice, but if Jones the Milk is hopeless, the others will soon find out.
