

Behind the Scenes at ## 43. It's About Time.

What I thought would be a quick and easy exercise of placing Lego vehicles and mini-figures against a photographic background, turned out to be anything but. As can be seen in the view below, it became quickly apparent that I needed to shoot the taxis and mini-figures at the correct angle. The Lego images below just don't look right. The picture below was my first attempt. It took a few photographs before I achieved the correct (hopefully), angle. I also had to darken the Lego images, slightly, so they fitted in with the grey day in the photograph.

